We now live in what the New Testament call the present age and we look forward to the age to come. But we already live in the age to come which began with the Death and resurrection of Christ. It is what you might say, "Already but not yet."

The new age has begun but its fulfilment is in the future. This is what we say every Sunday in the creed- "I look forward to the resurrection from the dead and the life of the world to come."

Look at what Paul is saying in the second reading.

So start living the new life here and now if you have not already started.

If you now have more time on your hands:-

1. Be attentive to what God is telling you NOW ... a wise virgin/ man / woman.
2. If you must cry, cry with someone.
3. Don't compare your life to others, you have no idea what their journey is about.
4. When in doubt, just take the next small step.
5. Take a deep breath every now and then, it calms the mind, say the name Jesus.
6. No matter how you feel, get up, dress up and show up.
7. If you want more, just text 07909 140867
